

CLUB CLASS DESIGN

Mitchell Evans LLP and David Hales Interior Design have recently formed a new company, Club Class Design LLP. This is an exciting new venture which, in particular, specializes in sports clubs design, with a particular focus on golf clubs. The two companies have worked together over many years and in recent years have specialized in refurbishments of golf clubs. The idea behind the new company is to provide a unified approach to both architecture and interior design. We are able to deal all aspects of the club house, ranging from initial sketch, feasibility study, planning, interior space planning, fabric and furniture selections, managing the project from inception right through to its completion.

A new website has recently be launched highlighting the services offered.
